"In February 2014, my delivery van (2009 Mercedes Vito) suddenly lost power. A warning light on the instrument cluster came on as well. This is the first time a problem like this has happened to the van. The vehicle has done over 200,000 km and has been serviced regularly.

An automotive mechanic on trouble shooting, advised that the Mass Air Flow (MAF) Sensor has gone bad, and required replacement. After fitting 2 successive brand new MAF Sensors, the problem did not go away. After a week, a friend introduced me to another mechanic.

"I am very relieved and thankful there is such a great product like JLM DPF Cleaner in the market"

The second mechanic advised that the DPF is most likely clogged. Mechanic poured a can of JLM DPF Cleaner into the diesel tank, and took the vehicle for a run on the highway. On return, the power was restored. Warning light was gone too.

Had the power not restored, replacement of the DPF would have cost upwards of AUD3,000. So I am very very relieved and thankful that there is such a great product like JLM DPF Cleaner in the market. I will from now, use DPF Cleaner regularly and share its effectiveness with my delivery colleagues."
